Soaring

Keith Kindrick October 2015

I mentioned this year's fall soaring festival will be a hit despite the drought and Team SWSA would be there in the middle of this event showing how to have a really good time. I was not far off from the prediction because it RAINED! Who would have ever thought that would happen. Friday kicked off with the ALES contest. There were 48 contestants this year the largest ever. Saturday was a nice warm day with lots of sunshine. CVRC had us fly an extra round of 10 minutes just in case the weather forecasted took place for the second day. Sunday turned around to be a cool and rainy morning. The rounds were to have been a 5, 10, 10. Rain changed the times to be a 5 and 5. I'll let the pictures Eber took show you what took place. (Thank you Eber – KK)
